GREAT BRITAIN TURNS TO CONSCRIPTION?

May Come Early In The New Year

FIGHTING FORCES BELOW STRENGTH

Conscription in Britain is bound to come—unless the first few months of 1937 show an all-round increase in recruiting. That, at any rate, is the opinion of those closely in touch with the situation. With all branches of the Fighting Services (with the possible exception of the R.A.F.) gravely under peace-time strength in an arming world, the Government are being forced towards this step.

A growing number of M.P.s are in favour of it, and it is practically certain that experts have already been at work on drafting a Bill. Mr. Frederick Montague, M.P. for West Islington and Under-Secretary for Air in the Socialist Government, said in a recent speech:

"It is stated in responsible quarters that a Bill for compulsory enlistment has been drafted, and is ready for presentation at an appropriate moment." A writer generally regarded as "in the know," says:—"I now hear 'on excellent authority' that finishing touches are being put to a Conscription Bill which covers all the male population."

The War Office will not answer the straight question. Officials referred a press representative to what Mr. Baldwin said in the House of Commons on April 1 last year.

AMBIGUOUS ANSWER

On that date Mr. McGovern asked the Prime Minister if he could give a guarantee that a conscription measure would not be introduced so long as peace prevailed. Mr. Baldwin replied: Yes, Sir.

So far as the present Government is concerned.

Both question and answer are regarded in political circles as ambiguous. They leave loopholes for Mr. Baldwin, but it is felt that on such a grave issue, the Government would go to the country for a conscription mandate.

Opposition, in view of the growing strength of Fascist and Nazi countries, is weakening.

TEN O'CLOCK TOAST

Links Southgate And Hong Kong

SOUTHGATE C.C. DINNER

At ten o'clock on the evening of December 23, members and friends of Southgate Cycling Club, assembled for the club's 44th annual dinner in Manor House Hotel, Finsbury Park, accepted the invitation of the chairman (Mr. A. T. Green) to drink to the health of the club's president (Mr. C. J. Newby), then in Hong Kong.

Before Mr. Newby left England for his extended trip to Australia, he wrote to the club's hon. secretary (Mr. G. R. Davies) as follows: "I hope you will have a successful and jolly evening and a bumper season to come. Please convey these wishes to your fellow conspirators and brother wheel-pushers. I shall be thinking of you and will drink to your good luck and success."

HEARTILY ACCLAIMED

Reading the letter to the jolly company of over 80 members and friends (a record attendance), Mr. Green said that a cable had been dispatched to Mr. Newby, which read: "mutual Toast to-night at Ten." The President replied as follows: "Best wishes for happy evening and coming season." The toast was enthusiastically drunk.

Not only in far away Hong Kong were thoughts centred on the Southgate gathering, but in America also, for from Marietta, Ohio, came a letter of appreciation from "Torchy" Peden, the world-famous cyclist who, in 1923 won the club's open "25." Recently he partnered Frank Southall in the Six-Day Race at Wembley, and was then invited to attend the dinner.

To a club official he wrote: "Please convey to the Southgate Cycling Club my sincere thanks for all kindness shown me, the latest being the invitation to your annual dinner. I'm leaving for New York hence it will be impossible for me to join you. I'll look forward to meeting you at some future date." This letter was received on the day of the dinner.

DUTCH CAPITAL EN FETE

Princess Juliana's Marriage

SCENES OF GREAT ENTHUSIASM

(Hong Kong Daily Press Special)

The Hague, Jan. 7.

Wednesday night will long be remembered as a kind of carnival night in the usually sedate Dutch capital. The closing hours for restaurants, cafes and other licensed premises were suspended entirely by the police since, although thousands of visitors had been accommodated in the neighbouring towns, it was still quite impossible to provide quarters for the vast number of people who thronged into the capital.

A great many therefore were obliged to pass the night in cafes and restaurants and were awake early on Thursday morning in order to obtain good positions in the streets along which the procession passed.

Further multitudes were disgorged at the station, the capacity of the building being taxed to the utmost with special trains arriving at regular intervals of ten minutes.

The crowds were managed, however, with great skill by the police who had made excellent arrangements for directing the masses into the centre of the town with the least possible delay.

Early in the morning, detachments of soldiers in field grey uniforms, steel helmets and with fixed bayonets marched into the centre of the city to the rousing strains of the military band and cordoned off the streets along which the procession was to pass.

CHORUS OF CHEERING

At 10.30 a.m. the bridal party left the Royal Castle where the procession had meanwhile been formed. Headed by detachments of horse artillery and cavalry, the first coaches in the procession contained the bridesmaids. A chorus of cheering then broke forth as the famous golden coach drawn

ECONOMIC EXPERT ARRIVES

Mr. W. Kirkpatrick

REPRESENTING EXPORTS CREDIT BOARD

Among the passengers who arrived in Hong Kong yesterday morning by the Ks. Rawalpindi from London, was Mr. William Kirkpatrick, representative in China of the British Exports Credit Board, who was accompanied by Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Mrs. G. Thorley, private secretary and economist of the Exports Credit Department.

The visitors were met on arrival by Captain W. J. R. Crags, A.D.C. to His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, and the Hon. Mr. Stanley H. Dodwell. They were guests at Government House last night and are proceeding to Shanghai this morning.

Mr. Kirkpatrick has come to assist the Exports Credit Department in assessing risks and to help British manufacturers capture a bigger share of China's trade. He is solely concerned with financial and economic proposals and the task confronting him is to examine and consider on the spot these proposals, submitted for guarantees in connection with the export of United Kingdom goods.

DEVELOPMENT OF HAINAN ISLAND

Canton, Jan. 7.

Following the recent inspection of Hainan Island by Mr. T. V. Soong, President of the Bank of China, and former Finance Minister, and other high officials of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, with a view to its early development, particularly in regard to its land and water communications, harbours and natural resources, it has been decided to commence, with the improvement of the island's highways and harbours.

Accordingly, the Provincial Government has instructed General Wong Keung to make an early inspection of the different harbours of the island. General Wong Keung is company with the commissioner of Customs, and a party of engineers and surveyors left Hailow in motor boats last Tuesday to inspect and survey the Yu Lin and San Min harbours.

CLARK-MURROW WEDDING

Brilliant Ceremony At Cathedral

A wedding of much interest in Naval and social circles in the Colony took place at St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon between Miss Peggy Murrow, daughter of Lieut.-Col. H. L. Murrow, D.S.O. (late R.A.) and Mrs. Murrow, and Lieut. Ronald Harrison Senior Clark, R.N., of H.M.S. Parthian.

The Rev. H. W. Baines officiated at the ceremony, and long before the arrival of the bride and bridegroom, the Church was comfortably filled. The pageantry customarily associated with Naval occasions was manifested in all its traditional brilliance.

After the signing of the Register in the Vestry, the bridal procession was formed and with characteristic elegance marched down the aisle towards a Gothic archway which was flanked by friends. Beyond the Gothic archway there spread two lines of Naval officers, colleagues of the bridegroom, in full Naval attire, and under a scintillating archway of crossed-swords the bride and bridegroom made their progress to their car which was drawn by a crew of ratings from H.M.S. Parthian to Queen's Pier where Lieut. and Mrs. Clark boarded a motor limousine and made their way to H.M.S. Medway where the reception was held and where a large number of friends gathered to offer their felicitations.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a dress of silver lame cut on graceful and flowing lines, with a very long train falling from the waist and with long sleeves falling in points over the wrists. The bodice was cut square and was gathered into a narrow clasp of diamonds. Her veil was of snow-white tulle threaded and embroidered with silver and held in place by a coronet of tiny ostrich feathers tipped with silver.

The bride carried a shower-bouquet of shaded mauve and pink sweetpeas tied with a butterfly bow of satin-gauze ribbon.

PAGE BEARERS

Attending the bride, as page bearers, were Miss Eve Ann Hayter and Master Anthony Darrell Bishop.

Miss Hayter's dress was of pale pink taffeta of medieval style while Master Bishop looked smart in a sailor suit.

The duties of best man were discharged by Lieut. A. W. Stewart, R.N., of H.M.S. Medway.

Later Lieut. and Mrs. Ronald Clark left for their honeymoon which is being spent at Repulse Bay and Maudia.

ANOTHER TEST CONTROVERSY?

Players Before Committee

Melbourne, Jan. 7.
A sensational aftermath of the third Test match which concluded to-day, it is learnt from a very high authority, was that four prominent Australian Test players were called before a special meeting of the Emergency Committee of the Board of Control to-day at Don Bradman's instigation to discuss rumours regarding off-field behaviour.

It is understood it was pointed out that the players' behaviour was unfair to Australia.

A spokesman of the players denied the rumours, stating that both sides parted in the most friendly spirit.

The Australian players for the fourth Test will not be selected before next week.

Later, a member of the Board, interviewed by Reuters, said that Bradman had not by word, writing or suggestion complained against any particular players, but Reuters understands that the four players concerned were McCabe, O'Reilly, O'Brien and Fleetwood-Smith.

ARMED ROBBERS IN KOWLOON

Money Exchange Shop Raided

Armed with revolvers and a scissors blade used as a dagger, a gang of three men made a haul of $500 in notes and $100 in silver when they raided the Kwong Sing Cheung money exchange shop, 15, Ma Tsin Wai Road, Kowloon City, at 7 p.m. yesterday. They threatened the mistress, Yip Lan, and escaped with the haul.

From the woman's own story, she was attending to her business when a surly looking man came up to the counter on the pretence that he needed some money.

The man suddenly produced a revolver, threatening her with death if she made any noise.

The other two men, one armed with a revolver and the other with a dagger, then entered through the grille, and while one of them had the woman covered with his weapon, the other ransacked the till, taking a sum not less than $500 in notes and silver coins.

After securing the money, the robbers hastily withdrew, escaping by the alley behind the shop in the direction of Shamshuipo.

JAEGER

CAMELHAIR COATS for WARMTH WITHOUT WEIGHT

These Jaeger Coats are, of course, made from the hair of the Camel, with that natural golden colour which has a charm all its own. No other material is so successful in combining lightness with real warmth, while Camelhair cleans easily and gives exceptionally long service. For even more lasting wear, Jaeger Camelhair-and-Wool Coats (similar in colour) are a delightful choice. Remember that the name Jaeger on the coat is a guarantee of the real thing. It is the proper coat for travelling. There are tweed coats too, for ordinary wear.

Reasons why 'MANSION' is so economical

'Mansion' being a highly concentrated wax polish, only very little is needed to give a mirror-like brilliance, to a large floor surface.

'Mansion', the preservative polish, lengthens the life of Linoleums.

Because 'Man Ion' gives such a lasting brilliance, floors need less frequent polishing.

JUANITA'S BEACH COAT

Even little Juanita Quigley is getting together a wardrobe for the resort season. The favourite item of the tiny Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer actress is a beach coat of brightly flowered blue challis, with a large brimmed hat and sandals to match. The ensemble was designed by Juanita's mother.

SUEDE JUMPERS

For winter sports wear, Jean Parker is replacing her sweaters with vari-coloured suede jumpers, worn with matching or contrasting flannel skirts. Under the jumpers she wears tailored blouses of white waffle pique.

RUST SHOES

Coloured shoes, with identically matched stockings, are being sponsored by Cecilia Parker, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer featured player. With a dress of brown woolen, Cecilia is wearing brilliant rust shoes and stockings. Her hat, bag and gloves are of leather in the same tone.

AFTERNOON BAG

A smart afternoon bag created from the head of a silver fox is a clever accessory in the wardrobe of Riksa Landi. The back of the bag is fashioned from black velvet, and a strap holds it to the hand. When worn with a gown with a silver fox trim, the bag gives the appearance of a small muff.

Off-The-Brow Hats Appear In First Spring Millinery Displays

We are in a transition period in regard to headgear, but the variety is immense. High topped hats and cone-like small caps with voluminous veils share popularity with flat panaches of felt, or Chinese crowns in straw with bandeaux of ribbon-twists, writes a London correspondent.

Pointed narrow coal-heaver's shapes, in beaver or black panache, show tufts of shaded ostrich tips or a bow of velvet ribbon and loops in somewhat crude Victorian colours.

The sports and semi-sports styles in wool, fabric and felt give prominence to the curate's hat in black, felt or antelope, which has a round turn-up brim akin to that of the old pork-pie. The parson's hat in felt, with square crown and a more decisive brim, is newer. This is put up at the back and trimmed petersham.

Many of the new bonnets show the Dutch influence with interesting colour decoration of coarse wool embroidery and new stitches in chenille and silk. Darker felts, square and fitting, have halo-like fronts of vividly coloured woolwork. This embroidery will be favoured for winter sports on scarf and cap.

For town wear, much satin is used for these bonnets. Black is the leader at the moment, and for early spring, when finely worked taffetas and crêpe will be in request. For the mid-season satin charmingly takes the place of velvet, and in a thick heavy weave is very becoming, especially as it has a lustrous surface.

The comfortable Dutch square fitting is placed well back on the head, with the wide front halo, turning well off the face. This can be of feather, woodwork, bright jewels or sequins and provides a touch of gaiety for bridge, cocktail and cinema afternoon party. With so much black and dark furs, the gay bonnet front is a cheerful and seasonable decoration.

For wear with the tailored suit a clever Jack Tar's cap has appeared in black or navy cloth, with three or four white gardenias taking the place on the ribbon-band of the ship's name. On a young piquant fact this cap is most attractive. It is worn well at an angle. This movement is coming increasingly into the vogue.

There is a new tricorn in silk with an acute tilt to one side, and a cluster of gay spring flowers on the other. Vells are easier to wear on the torpedo, or cone-shaped cap. One narrow model in antelope, with a forward side-poke, was accentuated by double loops and ears of satin. It had a floating veil heavily spotted, with chenille arranged down the centre to flow in various directions.

French women look well with narrower shapes, which come to a real point with high trimming in the front. The wider styles and the tricorn are generally far more becoming to the English.

Already one can find straws for spring and other suggestions for summer climates. Felts in all the pale pastel tones are always correct for the South of France and Egypt, while Palm Beach and the cruising season starts on fabric straws.

Cetage is light, wears well and keeps its shape, though from its appearance it might be a crêpe fabric. White and parchment shades are again to the fore for this, and for Panama. Black apricot and a dirty pink also appear in the Baillibutal category.

New and effective are the coarse coloured straws. Their shiny surface resembles to a degree some famous models from last spring but they now seem of softer make and the trimming is less hard.

The first of the New Year's models always show some coloured blossoms, and trimmings in the form of flowers or shells in worked felt and silk will reappear as a border to straw and satin turbans. I do not think the real all flower toque will be much worn. I rather imagine that the small fur caps of winter, with the cluster of roses resting in the crown, will have given us enough flowers, but spring millinery must show a garden brilliance in some form or other.

Bows, too, we have had in all sorts and sizes, but one new and attractive cap for cruising was of dark navy wool with crown in a striped novelty fabric in pink and white, which looked like cotton drill. It had a very wide bow of the same material on one side and a scarf to match. All such novelties are cheering at this dreary time of year.

Black and beige seems likely to be a favourite combination, especially for Egypt and West Indies. It is a decisive change from the equally desirable black and grey, and is pleasingly suggestive of spring.

I have noticed that fluted bows in fine straws are again seen in early collections, while pleats, tucks, all sorts of fine hand-work, are all featured in more formal headgear. Wide circles of stitchery and crossover stars in colour almost suggest knitted effects. They are really very fine and elaborate hand-work.

A turreted halo-front in black satin with black bows of gros-grain is new and effective. Other satin shapes, and there are many, look attractive when trimmed with multi-coloured ribbons. Some of these ribbon loops appear from the centre of the crown on an otherwise plain shape.

Never was headgear more interesting. Some styles still retain a somewhat exotic air, but generally they are becoming and easy to wear.

DOLL DRESSING KNITTED CLOTHES

Dolls remind human beings how greatly they depend on clothes. For half the pleasure of a doll is her clothes and the processes involved in putting them on and taking them off. Everyone remembers the blank feeling when a doll was found to have been created irrevocably with her clothes attached. Tiny children set to work at once to take off a doll's clothes, and this apart from a general talent for taking things to pieces. But dressing dolls takes time, even in this age of fewer clothes, and it has to be remembered that accessories are usually prized more than the actual garment. The most important part of a crawler, for instance, is the pocket, preferably with a handkerchief in it.

Knitted dress has been taken over by dolls even more than by human beings, and there is the same lovable quality about knitting as about a cat. But knitting should include a cap, gloves perhaps, a little bag, or these should be added to them in a different material. Grown-ups like costume dolls. Children usually like dolls as much like themselves as possible, or younger. A baby doll is always popular, but the excellent baby dolls made to match the baby in the nursery are not always enjoyed as much as less good versions, because they are so often hard. The reason a Teddy Bear found so much favour was because it was soft and woolly. Dolls' bodies are always liked more if they are soft, though this softness can be achieved sometimes by clothes. Sub-suits are the last giver's way of dressing dolls for Christmas. These meet with approval, but the wardrobe has to be supplemented at home with something as much like the child's own clothes as possible.

BUTTONS MATCH BEADS

Stud buttons feature a clever black velvet afternoon frock recently purchased by Una Merkel.

PAINTED HAIR BAND

Novelty Evening Style

Hairdress styles for the evening are varied and unusually interesting. Even with the magnificence of the Coronation season with its coronets, glittering gems, and beautiful headdresses, the perfect silhouette of the head itself will be preserved. This is essential in this new era when the sculptured line in coiffure is sought after.

In the Antoine coiffures, the latest Parisian styles are shown. Front and side views disclose a band of the owner's own hair, painted to any colour she may desire, whether to match an evening frock, or her own tresses. Contrast in colour can be most amusing.

This ingeniously simple but original touch makes for the look of youth. There is the upward-high movement in the front and, at the back, the hair is so arranged or to leave it swathed plainly over the short shingle.

There is an Edwardian suggestion about this mounting movement. Another significant factor is that the lobes of the ears are visible, whereas the upper parts are covered by soft side-curls, light and feminine. This new system of colour-streaking is interesting. Being merely painted, change is so easy and, in the distance, a simple looking hair-band and bow might pass for ribbon.

It is a vogue both young and gay, for, as stated, it may exactly match the natural hair of the owner instead of the dress.

With white hair, a look of youth can be achieved by painted bands of pale purple or steel-blue. These need not be changed so often.

Such simple and unusual touches give charm to the classic foundation.

Goes in for Tablecloth Art

Margot Grahame, currently in the title role of "Night Waitress," melodrama of the San Francisco waterfront, eased the tedium of pauses between shots of the picture by using the tablecloths in the setting as drawing paper. Maybe it will become a fad.

PIGSKIN COAT FOR JOAN

Miss Crawford's Wardrobe

A complete pigskin outfit, decidedly appropriate for the season, is in the wardrobe of Joan Crawford. The ensemble consists of a full-length pigskin polo coat, beret, gloves, shoes, scarf and bag of matching leather.

The M-G-M star wears this outfit over a simple sports frock of brown wool.

DUSTY ROSE AND Delf BLUE

With everyone wearing black, brown and navy for autumn, Julie Hayden adds a note of colour to the fashion parade by choosing a woollen suit in dusty rose and delf blue.

The high neck jacket with its Puritan collar is created in the rose. The plain skirt with its flared hemline, is blue. To add a further touch of colour, Julie picks an old gold scarf in at the neckline. Her accessories are in a matching shade of blue.

AUTOMATIC HAIR DRYER

Smallest In Hollywood

The smallest automatic hair dryer in existence is in the possession of Eleanor Powell. The gadget, complete with attachment cord, is so small that it occupies only a small corner of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star's make-up box.

In addition to being a dryer, another attachment may be snapped into place which transforms it into a miniature vacuum cleaner, handy for cleaning off woollen suits.

SLACKS FOR ELEANOR

Eleanor Powell recently purchased an entire wardrobe of slack suits for the autumn and winter months.

They are fashioned from wool crepe, and in a wide variety of colours. Eleanor has written her name on the pocket of each of the fifteen new suits, and now the signature of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer dancing star is being embroidered over to make it permanent.

Why a Schoolmaster introduced 'OVALTINE' into his School

FROM his own personal experience, the Head Master of an important provincial school has proved the supreme health-giving properties of delicious 'Ovaltine.' This has led him to inaugurate a scheme for supplying 'Ovaltine' to his pupils. He writes:—

"I should like to add that, in preference to any other form of beverage, I regularly take 'Ovaltine' myself each evening. I consider it to be all that you claim for it. I know it is many years since I have felt so fit and bright morning after morning—so thoroughly rested and refreshed after seven or eight hours sound sleep. In fact, it is my own personal experience which led me to introduce 'Ovaltine' into my school."

The experience of school authorities all over the country shows that where 'Ovaltine' is added to the mid-morning milk at school the beneficial effects are most marked. The children who have 'Ovaltine' are found to be more energetic, more alert and less liable to catch coughs, colds and other infectious ailments.

'Ovaltine' possesses special properties which, when added to milk, make the milk deliciously palatable, easily digestible and much more nourishing. In fact 'Ovaltine' is, in itself, a complete and perfect food. There is nothing 'just as good.'

FASHION'S LATEST

AROUND THE SHOPS

Shirt-waist gowns are a specialty of the moment, and though most of them follow the chemise-fronted shirt, collared and with long sleeves, those of gold lame may be given short cape sleeves. Variations such as narrow gathered widths down centre fronts of straight skirts also bring change, and appear on a black and white striped lame model with long shirt-waist sleeves and yellow bow tie at the neck-line. A plisse skirt makes an attractive change for one of these gowns in black chiffon. A quilted designed keeps the plisse in order round the hips and re-appears through the chemise front, turn down collar and cuffs to moderately wide bishop sleeves.

Plisse is a youthful note for the simple type of Grecian gowns in black or coloured chiffon. It is of the finest pin variety and hangs straight to the ground beneath little short-waisted corselets. These gowns are attractive in an unsophisticated way, with or without little puff sleeves, but with rounded décolletages and a fine line of contrasting colour such as turquoise on black outlining the girl Grecian corselet.

Black for youth might sound odd but far from unusual, particularly with Lucile Paray who brings charm to organza by touches of white or colour. Orchid mauve is attractive in one instance, forming a deep machine-stitched corselet swathe round waistline from back to centre-front whence twin falls of the colour hang to hemline. Hems to these gowns are moderately full and high corselets may show cap sleeves and an open split at either side of high backs.

Another fascinating idea for black taffeta or poultie gowns is the super-imposed peacock tail spread raying out in a few well chosen colours from a big bow. One example is in purple, turquoise and pink.

An interesting style which might be classified amongst the off-nights, is an ensemble in two vivid colours in contrast, one being used for the Empire-cut ground length sheath of rich satin and the other for a full length semi-fitted cloak of organza. Emerald, green satin and orange-coloured organza is one example, with the cloak carrying all decoration. This is simple in shirred lines running horizontally on to piping through deep yoke and puff sleeves, finishing in a frill beneath elbows.

This type of ensemble occurs again in black lace for the cloak and black mousseline de sole for the sheath.

New Coat-frock

A new coat-frock dinner line has been evolved in black crepe satin broche with a woollen leaf design. It of semi-fitted, classic tailored persuasion, and looks smart, with a pure white muffler tucked in at neck-line, opening above a centre front button and buttonhole corselet fastening.

A red spangled closed bolero top, with short sleeves and breast pocket, which is given a handkerchief of red chiffon, has a sporting air. This completes an all-red outline, with the brilliant jacket ending just above a smooth, easy-fitted corselet waist, to a mat crepe skirt, with split front and slender trained back. If cleverly chosen tailored jackets in golden cloque, with a fine jersey cloth gown, are suitable for gala occasions. The gown has a low strapped décolletage and corselet hooked together at centre front, an old idea on a new outline, and shows a full-fronted skirt swaying beneath.

Smart, though perhaps not so full dress, are white and black spotted, surah, hi-length coatees, with short sleeve to black gowns, which have full décolletages. Swathed waist belts match the coatees and have a fresh charm even when selected from darker colour combinations, such as red and black spotted surah.

Splashes of grey colour, on the other hand, come with the new floral printed satins launched during mid-season. These gowns are a suite of outline, which, in one or two instances, enhances tulle, peplums of a single colour in three or four layers, which sweep down at the back from shorter fronts.

JULIET CAP

A Juliet cap fashioned from small, real gardenias, perched on the back of Della Lind's blonde head when she attended a recent formal function.

Her dress, of white satin, was princess style with short puffed sleeves. Crystal and seed pearl banding ornamented the neck-line.

STARTLING NEW COLOUR

A startling new colour was introduced to Hollywood by Rosalind Russell who wore an evening gown of periwinkle velvet-trimmed with crystal and seed pearl banding.

The gown, of Princess style, featured a low cut square neck and short puffed sleeves. The high waistline was marked by the bead embroidery.

LANE, CRAWFORD'S

The latest in cocktail blouses have just been received by this very popular store. They have them in all shades and makes of materials and also in all sizes. This shipment being the snappiest yet received, they are the last word in smartness and so fashionable for cocktail and informal wear. One model in multi-colour lame finished off with diamante buttons down the centre of blouse, was most attractive. Another was in white silk crepe, with touches of lame had the very new short puff sleeves.

RIVELLE

Is having a real clearance sale and everything possible in the store have been reduced to practically below cost. Beautiful evening gowns, in velvets, silk moire, and satins, afternoon dresses, smart fur trimmed coats are all included in this sale.

MAYOS

Have just received a new shipment of smart evening dresses, hats, batonets and new hoods. The hats are the latest in colours and styles, the new off-face models being the most fashionable for the coming spring.

SMART RESORT SUIT

Harlow's Latest

Jean Harlow introduced a smart resort suit of white gabardine to admiring friends recently.

The three-quarter length coat, with a tight bodice and flared skirt, featured wide lapels of navy blue embroidered in a white, Tyrolean peasant design. The culottes, of white, had a similar blue band as a belt.

Beneath the coat the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star wore a navy blue cashmere sweater.

BUTTONS COME FIRST!

Maureen O'Sullivan has reversed a clothes situation. Instead of looking for buttons to match a dress, she is searching for a dress to match some buttons.

The buttons were sent to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer actress from her father in Ireland. They are made from pure crystal into which has been pressed medallions of Irish lace. She has six large and six small buttons, and has decided to design a dress to show them off to their full advantage.

NEW POLO COAT

Madge Evans has added a unique camel's hair polo coat to her wardrobe. The coat has a detachable collar of red fox, and may be worn either with or without the collar.

The coat is swaggy in style, with hand-stitching about the cuffs and lapels.

TOQUE OF GREEN FEATHERS

A tiny toque of dark green feathers complemented a green velvet afternoon frock worn recently by Jeanette MacDonald.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer singing star wore gloves of green suede, with cuffs of matching feathers. A cluster of the feathers appeared as trimming on her green suede hand bag.

TRICK BAGS

Count on Eleanor Powell for anything new in trick bags. The latest acquisition of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer dancing star is a "music box" bag, a creation with a folding top like an accordion. At the pressure of a small button concealed on the inside, a hidden music box chimes merrily. It is possible to change small metal disks and so procure a variety of melody.

NEW DINNER SUIT

Back from New York, Betty Furness caused much favourable comment when she appeared for dinner wearing a new, knee-length dinner suit. The skirt was fashioned from accordion-pleated gold lame. The jacket, hip length and featuring a circular peplum, was created in velvet. Black velvet gloves, hat, bag and slippers combined to make this an extremely chic costume.

NOVEL FUR STOLE

Laurels for the most novel fur creation of the season go to Virginia Bruce, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer featured player.

Miss Bruce has a fox stole, cross fox on one side and red fox on the other. The stole, which, of course, is reversible, may be worn with either side out, according to the colour scheme of the costume.

BROADCLOTH AND LAMB

Frances Langford has a smart travelling suit of black broadcloth trimmed with bands of Persian lamb. Gloves, hat and bag of the same fur complete the ensemble. Miss Langford's shoes are of black suede.

STRANGER IN EDINBURGH

Is "Fleeced" Of
£7500

Scotland Yard are trying to trace three men who are stated to have "fleeced" ex-Police Inspector Charles Mills, D.C.M., now living near Bournemouth, of £7500 over an alleged deal in gold mining shares. Mr. Mills first met one of the men in Edinburgh.

Mr. Mills, who is over 60, was for many years in the Shanghai Municipal Police. He won the D.C.M. in France during the Great War.

"I have lost every penny I had," said Mr. Mills to a reporter. "They have taken everything except my small pension." Mr. Mills was in Edinburgh on business about three months ago. A casual inquiry from a stranger as to the way to the Wallace Memorial led to the meeting.

Subsequently two other men came into the story, and all three stayed near Bournemouth for a time and frequently met Mr. Mills.

Eventually an alleged transaction over the shares, of which one of the men is said to have owned about £27,000 worth, took place at the Langham Hotel, London, and Mr. Mills was induced to part with his £7500.

The money is understood to have included several £100 notes.

AVIATRIX LEAPS
FOR LIFE

In Attempt On Record

FRENCH PLANE FAILS

Mlle. Maryse Hilla, the well-known French airwoman, had to leap for her life by parachute when attempting to beat the women's world speed record of 445 kilometres an hour (approximately 273 miles an hour).

Before she flew the plane, the French speed king, Delmotte, took it up to try it out, and achieved a speed of 401 kilometres an hour. Mlle. Hilla then took his place at the controls, and made an excellent take-off.

After a quarter of an hour, as she had not returned, the little group of famous airmen waiting for her became anxious, and some went up in planes in search of her.

An hour later it was learned that the plane had fallen in a lake at Fos-sur-Mer and that Mlle. Hilla had leapt out and come down by parachute.

"WAS BEATING RECORD"

She fell in the lake near the plane, breaking two ribs. She was taken to a nursing home at Marseilles. Her condition is less grave than was at first thought.

"I was actually beating the record when the plane crashed," she said when picked up. "I estimate that I was flying at more than 450 kilometres an hour."

"I am not even sure that I jumped out—it is possible that I was thrown out by terrific wind gusts, but my parachute opened immediately."

"When I struck the water I sank, but I was dragged up with considerable force by the ballooned silk of my parachute, and was pulled across the lake until a fisherman picked me up."

The machine, she said, was caught in the mistral, the violent northerly wind that blows in these areas, and nose-dived. She cut out the throttle and the machine righted. She opened the throttle, was caught again in the mistral, and the machine made another nose-dive to earth.

The plane is lying in ten feet of water and is believed to be totally wrecked.

KING'S SILVER
SOLD

Haile Selassie's
Treasures

Silver accumulated by the Emperor of Abyssinia and brought to Britain when Haile left his country was sold on December 21, at Puttick and Simmonds, Leicester Square, London.

There were many hundred-weights of it, including plates of all kinds. The royal palace certainly lacked nothing in the way of silver splendour.

There was no spectacular bidding, as silver is sold by the ounce and sentiment counts for little among buyers.

A NEW OWNER

In a few bids "Lot 1" was knocked down for £3 15s. and the Emperor's dozen finger-bowls with his elaborate monogram had found a new owner.

It was the plated goods which were bringing in small prices. Four lots had gone in a minute.

The royal cake baskets went for £4 5s. and a tea and coffee service, with urn, lamps, and pots, was sold for £11.

The royal loving cup, engraved with the crown, went for 12s. an ounce—about £10 in all—and a prize cup embellished with the Lion of Judah was sold at 10s. an ounce, or a total of £18.

BROUGHT £500

The plates mounted with gold and silver coins brought in a total of £507 10s.

Two Ethiopian plates bearing many gold and silver coins led the way with £44 and £46 respectively.

It was the number of gold coins which determined the value.

The Brazil plate brought in £22.

Switzerland £27, and the United States £23.

Italy has been buying mules from Texas, and some people would like to see Emperor Mussolini's face after he has issued an ultimatum to one of these animals.

"SWORN ENEMY"

The motion picture, more than any medium this reporter can mention, is causing us to look squarely at life as this generation is meeting it.

This is the thought suggested by a picture which is at the Majestic Theatre to-day, called "Sworn Enemy." It is, briefly, a realistic study of the high-handed gentlemen who are attracting so much current attention from the G-men. The picture comes from the studios of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer where they spare neither pains nor money to put life's imprint on celluloid. While it is a gangster story, in a sense, it is far more than that for it instructs the innocent citizen as it entertains him.

For instance, the suave racketeer portrayed by that arch villain of the screen, Joseph Calleia, controls the food market and extends his business into the more available field of prize-fighting. Calleia comes into the picture on crutches, a sort of Lon Chaney character, who goes out on a blast of dynamite, appropriately and spectacularly.

The cast is excellent. Robert Young plays the role of a young fight manager and square-shooter whose brother is killed by the gangsters because he knows too much. Florence Rice, the delightful daughter of Grantland Rice, the noted sports writer, appears in the feminine lead. Others are Nat Pendleton as a pugilist, Lewis Stone, Harold Huber, Harvey Stephens and Samuel Hinds. Edwin L. Martin directed and Lucien Hubbard was the producer.

"A SON COMES HOME"

Real drama will flash across the screen of the Alhambra Theatre, to-day, when Paramount will present "A Son Comes Home" with Mary Boland, in the featured role, surrounded by a capable company of players who skillfully unfolded a highly entertaining story of mother love packed with live-wire situations.

"A Son Comes Home" is a powerful story of a mother who waited fifteen years to hear from the son who had run away when a boy, and in whom she always had believed. She is the owner of a Chowder House in a California town and her goodness to the waterfront folk had earned her the application of "The Angel of the Wharves."

Real tragedy enters her life when a young prisoner charged with murder claims her as his mother. She knows she is not, but, believing in the innocence of the boy, she accepts him as her own and then sets out to find the real murderer. Her goodness to the young stranger results in her finding out that her own son is the slayer.

Put on a spot where she must either deliver over to justice her own flesh and blood, or let an innocent youth die, she makes a great decision.

This is Mary Boland's first screen dramatic role and she handles it to perfection. Other capable players are Julie Haydon, Donald Woods, Anthony Nace, Wallace Ford and Roger Imhof.

First National's film biography of Florence Nightingale, "The White Angel" is showing at the Oriental Theatre to-day and to-morrow. Kay Francis and Ian Hunter are in the leading roles.

A BISHOP AND MRS. SIMPSON

"ONE WHO ALREADY HAD TWO HUSBANDS LIVING"

Three Bishops referred in diocesan messages on December 23, last, to the Duke of Windsor.

One of them, Dr. B. O. F. Heywood, Bishop of Ely, refers to Mrs. Simpson, too. Dr. Heywood writes: "Surely it was neither on account of Mrs. Simpson's rank or nationality that the British people so resolutely opposed the projected marriage of the late King; but because of a deep underlying conviction that divorce with remarriage, however it may be tolerated in an imperfect world, is not in accordance with those higher standards of living which, in their hearts, most men approve."

"The King might have married Mrs. Simpson, thus making her Queen, but neither in this country nor in any part of the Empire would that course have been approved."

"UNEASINESS WOULD HAVE QUALIFIED LOYALTY"

"And had it been followed the stability of our constitutional monarchy would indeed have been imperilled. It was abundantly evident that the British people could not accept as Queen one who already had two husbands living."

"Alternatively, if the King, aware of the disfavour with which his proposal was viewed, had renounced all thought of marrying Mrs. Simpson—while the sacrifice of his personal inclination would have been acclimated in many quarters—there would undoubtedly have been a prevailing feeling of uneasiness which would have qualified the loyalty with which the British people are accustomed to regard the occupant of the Throne."

"SORROW, SYMPATHY AND GRATITUDE"

Dr. Guy Warman, the Bishop of Manchester, writes of the Duke of Windsor:

"Both as Prince of Wales and as King he used his many gifts in the service of the Empire, and he helped us much. We cannot let him go without sorrow, and sympathy, and gratitude."

"Words help little at a moment like this, but prayer helps much, and we shall pray for him who ceases to be King."

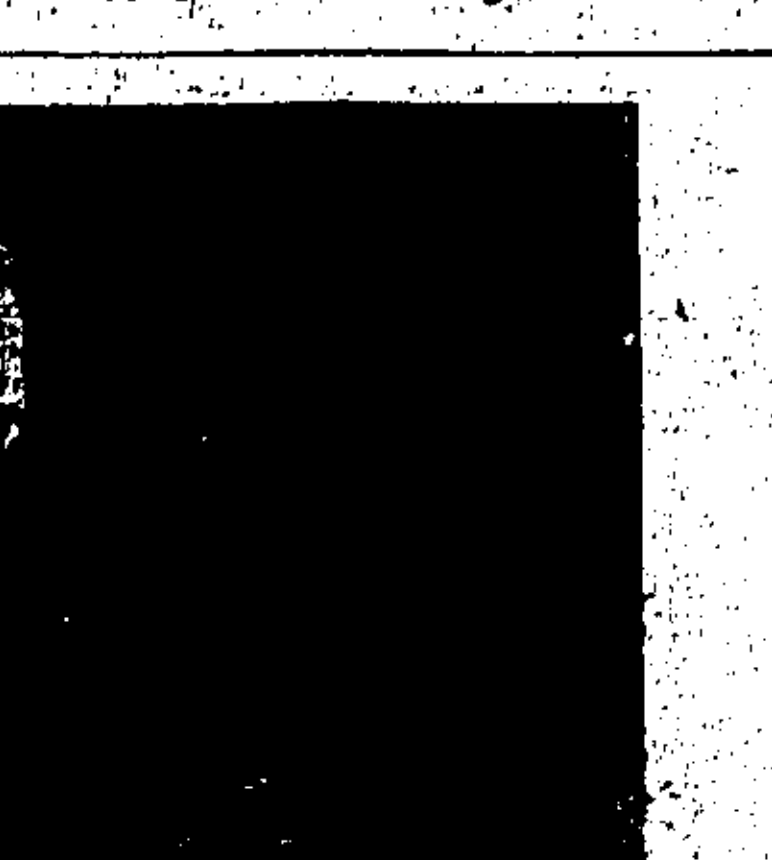

The Bishop of Coventry, Dr. Mervyn George Haigh, writes: "While we shall never think of the Duke of Windsor without gratitude and charity, our individual loyalty henceforth will be to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth."

formia town and her goodness to the waterfront folk had earned her the application of "The Angel of the Wharves."

Real tragedy enters her life when a young prisoner charged with murder claims her as his mother. She knows she is not, but, believing in the innocence of the boy, she accepts him as her own and then sets out to find the real murderer. Her goodness to the young stranger results in her finding out that her own son is the slayer.

CLAIM AGAINST FILM COMPANY

Further Evidence Given At Summary Court

The hearing of the action brought by Mr. Cecil Ng Wing Lee against the Eastern Hollywood Film Company for the alleged detention of two Bell and Howe 400 foot film magazines, two Debris 400 foot film magazines and six Reflex camera slides valued at $355, and damages for $645, was continued before the Pulaue Judge, Mr. Justice J. J. Hayden at the Summary Court yesterday.

Mr. G. S. Hugh Jones appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. D. McCallum was for the defendant firm.

The first witness of the day was Mr. Jensen Jones, sound recording engineer, residing at 47, Reclamation Street, Kowloon.

Mr. Hugh Jones: You know both the plaintiff and the defendant firm?—Yes.

Did you ever hear Mr. J. Shek refer to the magazines before this action was brought?—Yes.

Where?—At the Al Cafe, Yau-mat, near the Majestic Theatre.

And the date?—July 14.

Who were present then?—Tong Kim-ting, J. Shek and his brother, A. Shek, Mr. Torres, plaintiff and myself.

LEARNED OF OBJECT

Did you know why they met on that occasion?—I did not know before the meeting but I learned of the object afterwards.

And what was the object?—That plaintiff wanted the recovery of the magazines but Mr. J. Shek refused to return them.

Do you remember what Mr. J. Shek said?—Yes, that the magazines had been taken by a Mr. Kwok.

Do you know who Mr. Kwok is?—No.

Did Mr. Shek make an offer to return the magazines?—Yes, Mr. Shek wanted plaintiff to pay $150: $50 in cash and $100 in credit before he would return the magazines.

Were there any other references to the magazines?—Yes, Mr. Shek referred to them on one other occasion.

Where?—I can't remember the date but it was at the Al Cafe again.

VALUE OF EQUIPMENT

What is the value of the equipment and services for one month?—About $700.

Is that the maximum?—No, more is charged if R.C.A. equipment is used.

Did you offer to hire the services and equipment of the plaintiff's?—Yes.

Was it accepted?—It was accepted, but the equipment was incomplete.

In what way was it incomplete?—For the want of magazines.

When was this?—I have forgotten the date, but it was after our conversations at the cafe.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

In cross-examination, Mr. McCallum asked:

At the meeting at the cafe on July 14, who was the first to arrive, you or plaintiff and his party?—Plaintiff and his party. I was the last to arrive.

Who was the first to leave?—The whole party left together.

Throughout the whole time there did all remain together?—No, I visited another table for a while, and others occasionally left for short visits elsewhere.

Were you at the party by arrangement or by chance?—By chance.

How many times did Mr. J. Shek say that the magazines were in the possession of Mr. Kwok?—Three times.

How is it that you recollect this so distinctly?—Because on the first occasion, plaintiff asked him the whereabouts of the magazines, the second time when plaintiff asked Mr. Shek where he should go for the magazines, and thirdly when Mr. Shek said to plaintiff that if he had $50 then he would take him to Mr. Kwok's place and retrieve the magazines.

Did everybody hear the conversation?—No.

Who did hear?—Mr. J. Shek, plaintiff, Mr. Torres and myself.

Why could not Tong Kim-ting hear?—Because not all throughout remained at the party.

Did Mr. Shek say that the magazines were taken away by Mr. Kwok?—Yes.

Did he say how many?—No.

Say what kind?—No.

Did Mr. Tong take part in the conversation?—No.

Did Mr. A. Shek?—No.

Did Mr. Torres?—No.

Did you?—No.

Then the only people who spoke (Mr. Jones' objection to the question was sustained by his Lordship).

In discussions about the magazines did anyone else make remarks beside the plaintiff and Mr. J. Shek?—No.

Why did Mr. J. Shek want plaintiff to pay $150?—For damages.

What damages?—For bad recording.

Who was present when the remark was made?—Mr. Torres, Mr. J. Shek, plaintiff and myself.

The next witness was Tong Kim-ting, who was subpoenaed to appear in Court.

Upon Mr. Hugh Jones' questioning he replied that he was at one time in the employ of defendant.

He left that employ at the end of July, 1936, and was now with the Grandview Film Company, Ltd., one of the largest and best-known local film companies.

He added that, by reputation, he was a first class cameraman, and that he had filmed the production, "Sang Lick Kwan" for the defendant firm, and also for the film that was taken at the Cow Farm in which the equipment of Mr. Wing Lee was used.

The first attempt, he continued, was too short so another was made.

Mr. McCallum, in cross-examination, asked: Did the first attempt fail because of the failure to connect the shaft from the motor properly to the camera?—The shaft between the two cameras belonged to the plaintiff who was responsible for putting the shaft in properly. It had nothing to do with me. If there had been one motor for each camera than it would have been my responsibility.

Did plaintiff adjust it?—Yes.

Then did it still fail?—It still failed and we stopped work to save film.

Were all the negatives of June 6 developed by you?—Yes, even after plaintiff said that the films were useless.

What was the result after the sound films were developed?—After drying, they were found to be useless so I re-wound the roll.

Were they tested?—No.

FEW BREAKDOWNS

In the work on the morning of the June 7, did you find the equipment in good order?—The plaintiff brought the sound recordings to defendant's dark room and after testing them, plaintiff said that they were in good shape.

Work began at the Cow Farm and we "shot" during the majority of the day with the exception of a few breakdowns.

Did you have anything to do with the sound track developing?—No.

Were the films taken on June 7 developed?—Yes.

Were you present then?—I am not sure about the projection on that day.

Where were they tested?—I think it was at the Majestic Theatre.

Were you present then?—Yes.

In your opinion, was the sound track good?—It was not good because of the bad tone. The sound track was on the wrong side of the film.

After a discussion on the peculiarities of the particular camera films used the hearing was adjourned.

LARCENY OF A STEAM PIPE

Accused Offers To Make Good

Tin Wai, 25, unemployed, was brought before Mr. J. A. Fraser at the Central Magistracy yesterday for the larceny of a steam pipe from a construction yard, belonging to Lam Yu.

Inspector O'Connor stated that the defendant broke it off a machine. He added that the pipe was bent so far back that it was impossible to repair it. As scrap it was only worth $2.

Giving the facts of the case, he stated that on January 6 about 3 p.m., a constable saw the defendant carrying the pipe and he questioned him.

The defendant stated that he had stolen it from a contractor's yard at King's Road.

Defendant: I used to work at the Talkoo Docks.

The defendant added that he was hungry.

The defendant told his Worship that he could fix the pipe.

The case was remanded for a week to give the defendant time to repair the pipe.

THEFT OF MIRROR

Wan Hing, 37, coal cooler, was brought before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy yesterday for the larceny of a mirror reflector, from a motor car at Statue Square.

The complainant was Lee Sui Cheong and it was alleged that he left his car outside 15 Hide Street when the defendant stole the mirror reflector after work on his way home. He was seen by a detective and was arrested.

Defendant: I finished working and I took it.

Sergeant Davis stated that the defendant did not look the type of person who would steal anything, and jokingly remarked that he might have taken it for shaving!

The defendant was bound over.

EUROPEAN FINED

C. W. L. Cole of 317, Prince Edward Road was again summoned for allowing his black and white terrier on Prince Edward Road without being muzzled or on a lead at 7.45 p.m. on December 18.

Mr. Cole was absent from the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, but was represented by a house boy who produced a letter which stated that the terrier slipped out of the house with the boy running after it. The dog was brought in a few minutes later.

A fine of five dollars was imposed.

OPIUM DIVAN ON LARGE SCALE

Chan Hing was sentenced to a year's hard labour when he appeared before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy yesterday for keeping an opium divan at 18, Bonham Strand East, first floor, on January 6.

Revenue Officer Ward stated that the residence was a regular opium divan. In those premises, he added, there were 25 pipes and eight beds.

R. O. Ward told his Worship that he was instructed to ask for the maximum penalty.

GREYNA GREEN MARRIAGES

Final Doom Of System?

Comparatively little has been heard of late, but much will be heard in the near future, of Greytna Green marriages. The Committee appointed to investigate the whole marriage law of Scotland has now sent in its report to the Secretary of State, and my political gossip tells me he has reason to believe that it is a unanimous one, writes a Home correspondent. The vexed question of "irregular" unions has received very special examination.

and there is little doubt that it will be publicly ventilated at a not distant date in the House of Commons.

DOOMED?

The report is bound to lead to the introduction of legislation, and the drafting of the Bill will indeed be a ticklish job for Government officials. It will probably spell the final doom of the Greytna Green system.

TAXI DRIVER SUMMONED

Accident Sequel

For driving without due care and caution on December 13, Pau Shu-ting, driver of a taxi was summoned before Mr. J. A. Fraser yesterday afternoon at the Central Magistracy.

Mr. B. C. Hobbs watched the case on behalf of the complainant. Giving evidence, Mr. J. V. Roberts said that he was employed at the Office Appliance and that on December 13, about 6.45 p.m. he was walking with his wife along Kennedy Road, towards the hotel from the direction of Garden Road.

"I was on the right side of the road, when I saw the lights of a car swerving round a corner. I immediately pulled my wife as well back as I could and before I knew what had happened, I was knocked down. There was plenty of room for two cars to pass at that time," Mr. Roberts added, "and there was no other car in sight. The car passed us a few feet away before it stopped. The driver then came up to me and said he was sorry, and added that he was in a hurry. I said, 'What is the matter with you?' The driver's reply was that he was sorry and that he did not see us."

"That same evening the driver came to the hotel with an interpreter and a bunch of flowers. He said again that he was definitely sorry and asked me not to report this incident. The man offered to pay expenses. I was in bed from December 13 to the 27 and I am still having treatment," said witness.

Pau said that he did not say he was sorry and that he was in a hurry. "I offered to take the man to the hospital or his home, and I also asked whether he wished to report this incident or not," said defendant.

Mrs. Roberts gave corroborative evidence.

At this stage the hearing was adjourned to this afternoon.

ROYAL PURPLE ROBES

Gowns For The Coronation

For the first time Royal purple velvet robes will be worn by the two Royal Duchesses, the Duchess of Gloucester and the Duchess of Kent, at the Coronation.

The robes are being woven by hand by a young girl, Lily Lee, in the employ of Messrs. Warner and Son, of Braintree, Essex.

The work is laborious and intricate. Miss Lee can complete only about three yards of velvet a week, and 41 yards are required for both robes. The silk was spun by the silk-worms at Lady Hard-Dyke's silk-worm establishment at Lullington Castle, Kent.

The history of Messrs. Warner and Son goes back to the days when French refugees established the silk industry at Spitalfields. Messrs. Warner moved from Spitalfields to Braintree less than 40 years ago.

FIRST PRIVY COUNCIL

King Approves Proclamation

The King held his first Privy Council at Buckingham Palace on December 22.

The Council was attended by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Lord Halifax, the Marquess of Zetland, Earl Cromer, Sir John Simon and Mr. Walter Elliot.

It is understood that at the meeting of the Council the King approved the proclamation of the Coronation.

The Council also dealt with other routine business. Afterwards the Marquess of Zetland was received in audience by the King.

Sir J. C. C. Davidson, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, also had an audience of his Majesty.

SEQUEL TO INCIDENT NEAR WHARF

Assault Alleged

Tung Kee, of 391, Hennessy Road, Wanchai, was summoned before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon for assaulting Wong Leung, of 28, Hing Lung Street, first floor, on December 24, opposite the Hong Kong, Canton and Macao Steamboat Company's wharf and causing actual bodily harm.

Mr. Hin Shing Lo appeared for the complainant while Mr. Peter Sin was for the defendant.

Mr. Sin asked for an adjournment which was granted after Dr. S. C. Ho gave evidence relating to the complainant.

Dr. Ho told the Court that the complainant came in to his office on December 24 in a very bad condition. He was then examined and Dr. Ho found that the man had cuts all over his body.

At this stage the case was adjourned to Thursday, January 14, at 2.30 p.m.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE BRIGADE

The return of cases treated during December by the St. John Ambulance New Territories Medical Benevolent Branch shows a total of 11,758. Cheung Chau reported an increased number of cases.

There was a case of attempted suicide from the Cheung Chau ferry launch; also two fractures—one compound fracture of tibia and fibula another fractured tibia. There were a number of difficult maternity cases; also twins.

Safety In The Air

Accidents to passenger aircraft make so deep an impression that there is a natural tendency to exaggerate their frequency.

On British services, travellers can insure themselves at the same rate as if they were going by rail or sea.

Nevertheless, the development of air transport calls for the most careful insistence on the safety factor.

A very useful reform has been made by the establishment of the Air Registration Board which will be responsible for the airworthiness of all civil aircraft plying for hire, except liners carrying more than ten passengers. For those the Air Ministry remains responsible.

This arrangement was recommended by Lord Gorell's Committee three years ago. From 1932 the Air Ministry has been assisted in dealing with civil aviation by a Joint Aviation Advisory Committee formed from the Committee of Lloyd's Register and the British Corporation
Aviation Committee.

Lord Gorell's report advised that this body should be reconstituted as a statutory, autonomous and executive Air Registration Board. There has been some opposition to the proposal on grounds of finance and limitation of powers. It is satisfactory to find that agreement has been reached within a few months of the passing of the Air Navigation Act which provided authority for the Board.

Air transport, construction and insurance will all have their members, and the powers conferred should be ample to ensure that our commercial aircraft are maintained at the highest and most reliable efficiency.

evil was to-day re-affirmed by Mr.

the death sentence would be meted out to pedlars and manufacturers of narcotics, while addicts would at least receive life imprisonment.

gan a round up of drug addicts, dealers and manufacturers, but so far only the unfortunate addicts got caught in the net. It is reported that about twenty were taken into custody and about a dozen will be executed to-morrow.
Nothing has yet been done about the many drug dens run by Koreans except that the police have been posted outside most of them and are waiting for Chinese

The civil ceremony was performed by the Burgomaster of The Hague and a copy of the entry in the register was immediately sent to the Court Chaplain, Dr. Obbink, who officiated at the church ceremony.

"I WILL FOLLOW THEE—"

After Dr. Obbink has concluded his address for which he took as his text the Psalm "I will follow thee with mine eyes," the actual marriage ceremony was performed by the retired Court Chaplain, Welter, who had baptised and christened the bride.

All the bells of every church in the city pealed out as the newly-wedded couple left the portals of the church and took their seats as man and wife in the state coach. Cheers of jubilation were unending as the procession retraced its way through the streets and passed the overcrowded tribunes, onlookers from all sides waving and shouting their good wishes.

At the portals of the Royal Castle the newly-married couple were received in state by the chief Court Chamberlain. The official part of the proceedings were thereby terminated, being followed by a reception of family character in Noorlind Castle.

BRILLIANT GATHERING

The Hague, Jan. 7.

Princess Juliana's wedding day opened with fine weather and a cloudless sky. The crowds were early astir and troops took up positions along the route before dawn. All positions of vantage in the neighbourhood of Groote Kerk town hall being occupied at an early hour.

Amid scenes of tumultuous rejoicing, Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard were married in the historic Groote Kerk. The brilliant gathering of Royal guests included 33 members of Royal Families from Britain, Germany and other countries.

Through gaily beflagged streets
the Royal couple drove in the famous golden coach in state procession, first to the town hall where the civil ceremony was solemnised and then to Groote
Kerk for the religious ceremony.

Princess Juliana wore a beautiful dress draped with ivory and satin. She was attended by twelve bridesmaids dressed in rainbow hues, while Prince Bernhard wore full dress uniform of Captain of the Blue Hussars.—

WEATHER IMPROVES

To-night the weather had considerably improved, after a drea-ching rain had ruined the day and many of the decorations.

The German Prince Wied and Princess Sophie of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenbach, who at the last moment found themselves unable to come to The Hague, will be replaced as groomsmen and bridesmaids by Professor Hultzinga of Leyden University and the Baroness van Hoekern-van Kall, one of Princecess Juliana's ladies-in-waiting.

Dutch commercial circles are pleased mightily by the request of Prince Bernhard to the managing-director of the Dutch Trading Corporation to keep open for him a position in the business, as after his honeymoon he proposes to resume his studies of the economic position of Holland and her colonies.—

BRITISH GOODWILL

Warm wishes for the future happiness of Princess Juliana of Holland and Prince Bernhard Lippe-Biesterfeld who are being married to-day at The Hague is expressed in British newspapers which have displayed the keenest interest in the preparations for the happy event.

Typical comment is that of the "Morning Post" which says: "The presence of our Duke of Kent and other members of our Royal House at the ceremony will be an earnest of the British nation's hearty good wishes and goodwill to the Royal bride and her husband, to the joyful people who acclaim them, and not least to their well-beloved sovereign, Queen Wilhelmina."

Prince Bernhard, who is 28, is tall and fair with blue eyes.

Princess Juliana, a tall blonde of 27, is the only child of Queen Wilhelmina, and the late Prince Consort, Prince Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

Her husband will receive £28,
000 a year from the privy purse of Queen Wilhelmina, and Princess Juliana's income after marriage will be £32,000.

KING GEORGE VI
COINAGEThree Artists To Share Work
Of Designing

I am able to announce that the designs for the George VI coins have been entrusted to Mr. Kruger
Gray, Mr. T. H. Paget, and Mr.
Percy Metcalfe, writes the London correspondent of the "Manchester Guardian." Mr. Kruger Gray designed the reverses of the George V coins and is also undertaking the reverses of the new coins. Mr.
Percy Metcalfe was responsible for the beautiful coinage of the Irish Free State. The head on the obverse of the new coins will be designed by Mr. Paget, and Mr. Metcalfe is doing the King's head wearing the Imperial Crown, which appears on the Indian and colonial coinage. These same artists were chosen to design the Edward VIII coinage, but only after there had been some altercation on the subject.

When at the death of George V
the question of the coinage was being considered by the Mint Committee King Edward VIII expressed a wish for a complete breakaway from the traditional designs of the previous reign and asked for something new and modern in spirit. The Mint Committee therefore asked a number of artists to submit designs embodying the King's wishes.
Sir Robert Johnson, the Deputy Master of the Mint, it is gathered, was particularly enthusiastic about the opportunity for introducing a new spirit into the national coinage.

Eventually Mr. Edmund Dulac, whose design for the King's Poetry Medal of 1935 was considered by Sir George Hill and others to be the best English medal produced in recent years, was told that his designs were approved, and he was commissioned to proceed with models.
Mr. Dulac accordingly produced models of the crown, the half-crown, the florin, shilling, and sixpence, and the die for the reverse of the half-crown was actually cut—a design of a sea-horse surrounded by waves and surmounted by the royal crown.

The reverse of the two-shilling piece showed the rose, shamrock, and thistle growing from a central stem, while that of the shilling was based on an arrangement of wings.

The Mint Committee, on second thoughts, presumably shocked by the very novelty for which they had been seeking, then decided that Mr. Dulac's designs were unsuitable on the grounds that they were neither sufficiently British nor sufficiently heraldic.

Eventually the reverses of the Edward VIII coins were entrusted to Mr. Kruger Gray, the head on the obverse side to Mr. Paget, and the head wearing the Imperial crown to Metcalfe—just as they are now to be for the George VI coinage.

If the coinage for the present
reign is to follow Mr. Kruger Gray's Edward VIII designs, with the substitution of a new head on the obverse, we are not likely to find when it is issued any notable break from the spirit of our George V coinage.

It is hoped to have a few of the new coins issued by the Coronation. The Indian and colonial coins will not be ready till later.

The designs for the Coronation medals have not yet been finally approved by the King, but it is known that, following precedent, these medals will have the effigy of the King on one side and that of the Queen on the other. They will be issued in the same two sizes as those struck to commemorate George V's Jubilee.

TREND OF EVENTS IN SPAIN

GRAVE ANXIETY IN BRITAIN

Danger Of Volunteer Activities

London, January 7.

The Prime Minister who has spent the Christmas recess at his Worcestershire home is returning to London to-night and it is expected he will be in consultation with the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden and other ministers on the Spanish situation and other matters during the next few days.

The leader of the Parliamentary opposition, Mr. Attlee, and the deputy leader, Mr. Arthur Greenwood, called on Mr. Eden at the Foreign Office yesterday and expressed the Labour Party anxiety regarding the trend of events in Spain. This perturbation is shared by all sections of the British community.

The "Times" says: "In this country the dangers of extension of the Spanish civil war are fully recognized and nothing can be more certain than that the British Government will exert all possible influence at their command to obtain international agreement for cessation of 'volunteer' activities. The latest news from Paris indicates that the French Government will do their utmost to help them even at the expense of the normal right of a French citizen to join in whatever civil war he pleases. Certainly every effort of our own Government to limit the Spanish struggle will have widespread support. The savagery which has marked the conflict has put an end to partnership of outside very restricted circles."—British Wireless.

SPANISH NOTE

Geneva, Jan. 6.
The Spanish note, published this evening, does not ask for League intervention. It is merely informative, describing the recent actions of the German Navy in Spanish waters for circulation among all members of the League.—Reuter.

ITALY'S REPLY

Rome, Jan. 6.
Count Ciano, the Italian Foreign Minister, received Sir Eric Drummond, the British Ambassador, to-day.
The British diplomat is believed to have inquired regarding the Italian reply to the Anglo-French non-intervention proposals.

It is understood that an Italian note with respect to this problem will be handed to the British Ambassador tomorrow.—Reuter.

GERMANY'S STAND

Berlin, Jan. 6.
Sir Eric Phipps, the British Ambassador, called at the Foreign Office to-day. It is understood he inquired when the German reply to the Anglo-French proposals for preventing intervention in the Spanish civil war would be forthcoming.

It is believed Germany will deliver her answer to-morrow.—Reuter.

U. S. ARMS FOR SPAIN

New York, Jan. 6.
The Spanish steamer Marcantabrico, loaded with arms for the Leftist Government of Spain, sailed at 1.45 p.m. (local time) to-day, thus winning the race to get away from American waters before the arms export ban is passed through Congress.

The ship left dock so hastily that none of the eight crated aeroplanes on deck were even lashed down. One case of spare aeroplane parts was left on the dockside, but the remainder of the armament cargo is on board.

A Coast Guard aeroplane and cutter halted the Marcantabrico, with its cargo of arms for Spain, off Sandy Hook. They ordered her to return to Brooklyn.

A little later, however, the Spanish ship was allowed to proceed. The halting by the Coast Guardsmen was due to a legal matter and was not connected with developments at Washington.—Reuter.

MALAGA AIR RAID

London, Jan. 6.
About 150 persons were killed and 300 wounded in an insurgent air raid on Malaga on January 2, according to information received in London.

It is also learned that 150 helpless insurgent prisoners were shot to death as a reprisal.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

U.S. President Deals With Problems

FIRST TERM "REVIEWED"

Washington, Jan. 6.

An addition to the present United States Neutrality Act, as a result of the Spanish civil war, was announced by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his annual message to Congress to-day. He also asked Congress to consider immediately measures for the extension of the life of "certain authorisations and powers which under existing statutes, expire within a few weeks. The President asked Congress to consider a Deficiency Appropriation Bill, presumably for new work relief funds, estimates for which the chief executive said he would submit this week.

He would defer other legislative recommendations, said Mr. Roosevelt, until his inauguration speech on January 20.

Reviewing the record of his first administration as President, he declared it was their task to prove that democracy could be made to function to-day. The recovery they sought was not to be merely temporary, but a recovery protected from the causes of the previous disasters, and which would carry them in the direction of greater satisfaction in life for the average man.

President Roosevelt outlined the following problems for the new Congress:

1. Slum clearance and rural housing;
2. Comprehensive overhauling of the administrative machinery;
3. Financial assistance to tenant farmers;
4. Intelligent development of the social security system and a long-range policy to prevent unemployment and provide adequate relief to the needy and unemployed.

BROAD OBJECTIVES

The broad objects of the National Recovery Act were sound, said the President. The difficulties had arisen from the fact that it had tried to do too much.

"The statute of the N.R.A. is outlawed, but the problems are still with us," he exclaimed.

President Roosevelt has apparently rejected the idea of a constitutional amendment, which was urged by many of his followers. For he said to-day that the vital need was not the alteration of their fundamental law, but an increasingly enlightened view in this respect. Means must be found to adapt their legal forms and judicial interpretation to the actual, present national needs of the world, he declared.

PEACE MACHINERY

"The progress of our democracy must not be imperilled by the denial of our essential powers of free Government," he exclaimed.

Referring to his visit to South America and the peace conference at Buenos Aires, President Roosevelt said the result of it had been the improvement of peace machinery; new systems to maintain peace and eliminate the causes of war had been confirmed. And wider protection of the interests of American republics in the event of war outside the Western Hemisphere, had been provided.

Respect for and observance of international treaties and laws had been tightened, he added.

His visit had showed that the masses of people in the Americas were convinced that the democratic form of Government could be made to succeed and that they did not wish to substitute therefor any other form of Government.

The declaration was greeted by loud applause.—Reuter.

ARMS EMBARGO

Washington, Jan. 6.
The Senate passed the arms embargo resolution this afternoon by an overwhelming majority after a brief debate. It now goes to the House of Representatives.—Reuter.

MUNITION FACTORY AT CHORLEY

London, Jan. 7.

The Office of Works, on behalf of the War Office yesterday accepted the tender of Sir Lindsay Parkinson and Co., Ltd., for the building of a munition factory at Chorley, Lancashire. The work on the 90-acre site is to begin at once and will continue for about two years.—British Wireless.

DUKE OF WINDSOR WILL RETURN

Announcement By London Astrologist

"LEADER OF SOCIAL LIFE"

The statement that the Duke of Windsor would, according to the indications of astrology, return to Britain in the next ten years as the leader of the social life of Britain, was made last month by Dr. Lionel Atherton, a doctor of osteopathy.

Dr. Atherton told members of the Federation of British Astrologers at their conference in London that "something would happen" to the Duke during the next ten years.

He added: "Those of you who are interested in recent events have only to take a map of his pre-natal epoch and you will see at once definitely across the horoscope shepherd kings of the hills and the shepherd kings of the plains.

"I think that is all I have permission to say at the moment, except that I would strongly recommend you to watch the progress of the shepherd kings of the plains during the next ten years." Afterwards, however, Dr. Atherton told a reporter that the Duke of Windsor was born under Aquarius rising, the sign that belonged to the order of Melchisedek.

RISE OF THE PEOPLE

Aquarius belonged to the people, and therefore the ex-King, from birth to the present time, was of the line of the people as distinct from the Crown.

Astrological science indicated that within the next ten years the Duke would return to Britain as leader of the social life of Britain, and that there would be a division between Church and State.

"I predicted ten years ago that the then Prince of Wales would take the name of Windsor," Dr. Atherton added.

Astrologers at the conference predicted a rising of the people all over the world, forcing rulers, to bow to their wishes.

The figures in the year 1937 were counted up to a total of 20, which is the magic figure corresponding to the influence of the moon.

They interpreted that as a sign of considerable activity among the people because the moon governs the masses.

SERIOUS EXPRESSION

King Edward's other wireless speeches sold in record numbers. So did the broadcasts by King George V.

The ex-King, now the Duke of Windsor, dressed in sports clothes but without a hat, was photographed from every angle by 17 British, American, and Continental press and film cameramen at Castle Enzelsfeld, near Vienna.

He bore a serious expression on his face, and all attempts to make him smile failed.

At the end of 10 minutes the Duke said: "I think that is enough now," and re-entered the castle.

VOLUNTEERS FOR SPAIN

Position Of Britain Discussed

London, Jan. 6.

Britain's position in the question of volunteers for the Spanish war is the subject of considerable discussions in political circles here, especially in view of the fact that an increasing number of English volunteers are departing openly for Spain and a contingent of 200 is scheduled to depart on Friday.

It is expected that the question will be the subject of ministerial discussions so that as soon as the Parliament convenes on January 20, an emergency bill can be introduced prohibiting British volunteers from engaging actively in the Spanish conflict under the threat of heavy penalty.—Transocean News Service.

BATCH TO LEAVE

London, Jan. 6.
About 200 to 300 British volunteers will leave for Spain on Friday to join the forces of the Valencia government, they having been recruited from the ranks of the independent labour party.

The communists are also endeavouring to obtain as many volunteers as possible and have sent about 500 within the past two weeks. The secretary of the independent labour party announced that the contingent embarking on Friday is comprised entirely of men with war experience.—Transocean News Service.

IRISH CONTINGENT

Dublin, Jan. 7.
Activity in the Cork district early this morning denoted that a contingent of several hundred men were departing for Spain immediately to join the O'Duffy Brigade, which is assisting General Franco's forces.

General O'Duffy's forces are due to move into the fighting line shortly. They have been provided with special green uniforms and will fight as a unit under their own officers.—Reuter.

PORTUGUAL'S ANSWER

Paris, January 6.
Portugal's answer to the Anglo-French questionnaire regarding volunteers in the Spanish war is characterized here as "lacking in clarity but not completely negative."

The Portuguese president Salazar who, obviously is setting great hopes on a successful outcome of Franco's new offensive on the Madrid front, made his answer complicated through various diplomatic arguments with the probable end in view of gaining time.—Reuter.

Reliable sources state an agreement for the settlement of Mexico's foreign debt will be signed shortly, though the terms of the agreement are understood to provide for a reduction at current exchange rates to about one-quarter of the original.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

SINO-JAPANESE NEGOTIATIONS

Tokyo, Jan. 7.
Mr. Hachiro Arita, Foreign Minister, has instructed Mr. Shigeru Kawagoe, Ambassador to China, to urge that Sino-Japanese negotiations be resumed before the opening of the Diet session on January 21, according to the "Yomiuri Shinbun."

The journal adds that the employment of Japanese advisers, the control of Korean malcontents and the reduction of the Chinese tariff are among the questions to be again taken up, while the anti-communist and air transport questions in North China will be negotiated on the basis of the

NO CONSCRIPTION IN BRITAIN

Faith In Voluntary System

The Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, in a speech at Glasgow, prophesied that Britain would never introduce conscription in peacetime and ridiculed the fantastic notions entertained in some quarters abroad regarding the alleged failure to solve the recruiting problem.

"I think," he said, "our foreign friends do not always understand our national characteristics. We hold very tenaciously to our traditions. We have our own ideas about the way we shall govern ourselves and defend ourselves. I think we shall be able to show other nations we—perhaps alone among the nations of Europe—can make the voluntary system work and that it will suffice for our needs."—British Wireless.

ARMY RECRUITING

London, Jan. 7.
Reports that Britain is moving towards conscription were given the quietus in a speech at Glasgow by Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, when he alluded to assertions in the European press that Britain had failed to solve her recruiting problem.

Sir Thomas said: "We shall be able to show other nations that we are able to make our own plan (deliberately adopted alone among European nations) one that will suffice for our needs." Sir Thomas prophesied that conscription would never be introduced in Britain in peacetime.

The Minister stated that recruiting for the Navy and Air Force was satisfactory, though in the case of the Army there was a great hiatus between the necessary complement and the numbers coming forward. Plans were being considered to make service more attractive.

In another speech dealing with the economic aspects of rearmament, Sir Thomas said the question of skilled labour was causing some concern, and he appealed to employers and labour to co-operate to enable the programme to be completed.—Reuter.

INFLUENZA RAGES IN BRITAIN

Police Force Also Affected

London, Jan. 7.
There are no signs of abatement in Britain's influenza epidemic, which is the worst for many years. London general hospitals are filled, the more serious cases numbering over a thousand.

The are 1,400 Metropolitan police on the sick list, representing eight per cent. of the Force.

An Army Order instructs all ranks to report sick on the appearance of suspicious symptoms and lays down, as preventive instructions, daily gargling and the avoiding of wearing damp boots and clothing.—Reuter.

MAXIMUM REACHED

London, Jan. 6.
The epidemic of influenza, which has assumed such proportions all over the country in recent weeks as to cause considerable interference with business and other activity, is believed to have reached its maximum.

The influenza is mild in form, but doctors are overworked and hospitals full in many cases largely by their own staffs.

There are over a thousand influenza cases now in the London County compared with 200 a week ago. Serious depletion of staffs of London stores has coincided with the opening of the January sales.—British Wireless.

FORTUNE LEFT BY MILLIONAIRE

Vienna, Jan. 6.
The question as to who will inherit the huge fortune left by the recently deceased millionaire, Naegelin Jahroff appears to be approaching its solution.

The "Neue Freie Presse" is reporting from Istanbul that none other than the Turkish State president, Kemal Ataturk, will be the heir. A greater part of the fortune, tell to two cousins of Jahroff, Melkome, Melkome and Alexander Jahroff, but both are over 40 years old and in view of their advanced ages, declined the inheritance, naming the Turkish president as recipient. The confirmation of this report has, however, not yet been received.—Transocean News Service.

PERRY VICTORIOUS

Defeats Vines In First Professional Match

RECORD GATE RECEIPTS

New York, January 7.

In direct contrast to W. T. "Big Ben" Tilden's statement that "Vines would murder Perry," Fred Perry, three times Wimbledon champion, beat H. E. Vines, world professional lawn tennis champion, by scores of 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, in their long-awaited first encounter in professional tennis.

Perry showed superior skill, accuracy and staying power and won what was billed as the "professional championship of the world."

He found the canvas-covered floor a little tricky at first, and twisted his ankle when attempting one of his famous slides in the first set, but he played sparkling tennis throughout the match.

Vines led 3-0 in the second set, but Perry asserted his superiority and drew level at 3-3.

It was noticeable that Vines went to the net more often than Perry, who was irresistible in the latter stages of the game, when he was the complete master of his American opponent, who tried desperately hard throughout.

The attendance was 17,933, giving gate receipts of U.S. $58,117, which is a record for professional tennis.

It was revealed later that Vines was suffering from a slight attack of influenza.

TILDEN'S PRAISE

He was disappointed that he was unable to give a better performance, saying to Reuters, "I was not surprised at Perry's excellence. His play was just about what I expected."

Fred Perry

Tilden, who picked Vines as an easy winner, said, "Perry played the finest game I have ever seen him play, especially in the third and fourth sets, when he was faultless."

G. M. Lott, the "Stormy Petrel" of lawn tennis, said, "Perry gave an exhibition of beautiful tennis, but he could not beat Vines every day of the week. Vines showed a lack of confidence."—Reuters.

RUGBY FOOTBALL FORWARDS' DAY

BLACKHEATH LOSE TO RICHMOND

Determined Attack In Second Half

Richmond finished their game with Blackheath with such vigour and determination that they fully earned their win by three goals and a try (13 points) to a try (three points). Neither club was at full strength, but R. Leyland was in the Richmond centre to replace P. Cranmer, and Blackheath brought J. T. Kemp out of his retirement to play scrum-half half-back once again, while J. A. Talbot made a welcome reappearance.

The game, however, was really fought out by the forwards, and on each side they gave a very fine account of themselves. Much of the middle-field play was ragged, and there was very little passing at any time that advanced the attack, but the forwards were always making a dour fight of it, and until the closing stages, when Richmond were winning, there was little between them.

Honours Even

They had most of the play, and more particularly in the first half, when it was rush and counter-rush, with the honours even, until shortly before half-time, when in a Richmond attack led by E. L. A. Folker, J. McGow, always a great skirmisher, kicked ahead, and N. B. Smiley touched down for a try, which Folker converted.

Blackheath came away at once, and form H. S. Wingfield, J. G. W. Davies got away to clear the course for R. C. A. Brandram, whose strong running beat the defence, but M. H. A. Martin was short with his kick at goal.

After the change of ends the play went in favour of Richmond, and Blackheath never looked like scoring again. They made some changes in their forces, Leyland playing outside half-back with Wingfield in the centre, but it was of no avail. Richmond had the whip hand, and were persistently hammering at the line. The Blackheath backs got in some dour tackling, but for all that Richmond piled up thirteen points in the concluding twenty minutes. E. D. E. Reed, who had done little previously, gathered the ball over the "25" line and ran through in great style to score, and Leyland got over twice very cleverly, leaving the defence bewildered by his swerve and dash. Folker, who took all the kicks, was successful with two of them.

PHYSICAL TRAINING

Winning Display By Aberdeen Industrial School

ELEVEN HONG KONG SCHOOLS COMPETE

The Aberdeen Industrial School (Salesian Institute) won the elimination round of the physical training competition for Hong Kong Vernacular Boys' Schools, which was held at the Hong Kong Football Club Ground yesterday morning. Mr. G. R. Sayer, Director of Education, was an interested spectator throughout the displays.

The competition is being arranged by the Education Department and takes the form of a combined physical training display in any style by squads of not fewer than 45 boys from each school. Points were awarded especially for neat appearance and precision in movement.

Yesterday's winners will next compete against the winners of the Kowloon Schools section who will carry out their eliminating round this morning at 10 o'clock on the Kowloon Football Club ground (by kind permission of the Kowloon Football Club). The finals between the two winners will take place at a later date.

During the course of yesterday morning, a display was given by the newly formed physical training Staff Class of the Education Department under the direction of Mr. J. Walton, head instructor. Their performance will be repeated to-day.

The following gentlemen officiated at yesterday's competition: Messrs. J. Ralston (Inspector of English Schools), Y. P. Law (Inspector of Vernacular Schools) and R. Edwards (Inspector of English Schools).

Following is the list of Hong Kong teams entered:—Aberdeen Industrial School (Salesian Institute), Tai Tung College, South China School, Kong Kien School (two teams), Kung Kan School, Ling Nam School, Kim Sin School, Confucian Society School, Ming San School and Sai Nam School.

BIG MAMAK MATCH

On Sunday at 10 a.m. on the K.I.T.C. ground, Kowloon, the Argonauts will clash with the K.I.T.C.

It's the first time these teams have met this season and some brilliant hockey should be seen. The K.I.T.C. have played six games and lost one, whilst the Argonauts have played two and won both.

The K.I.T.C. will be out to reverse the defeat they received at the hands of the Argonauts during the recent Inter-section Tournament.

GAMES AFTERNOON

A happy afternoon was spent by members of the Kowloon Women's Charity Guild when they held a games afternoon at St. Andrew's Church Hall, in aid of local charities.

The Committee comprising Messrs. Reid, Neyle, Lakeman, Smith, Coomes and Bartholomew, showed enterprise in having tables for mah jongg, whist and bridge, thereby catering to the different tastes of the members.

MORE JOBS IN THE NAVY

A Call For Blakes

"In the years before us we intend to take into the navy many more officers and men than in the past, and there will be a corresponding increase of new posts and new opportunities for distinction," said Sir Samuel Hoare, First Lord of the Admiralty, last month.

Speaking at the annual conference of the Incorporated Association of Preparatory Schools, he referred to the "excellent standard of candidates for Dartmouth and said that the numbers had increased recently. "I am not surprised," he added, "because the navy offers a career for a young man which compares favourably with most other careers open to him. For many years the navy is likely to need more officers, and the road will no longer end in a cul-de-sac in middle life."

Special Entry

There was no question of scrapping Dartmouth and relying solely on public-school entry. The special entry, which produced officers so much more quickly than Dartmouth could, must obviously in a period of expansion be greatly increased. The intention was to make the most of the public-school entry, but that did not detract from the importance of Dartmouth, which was as permanent as most of our great schools. The number of entries was likely to remain at the present figure of 45 a term for years to come.

"Finally," Sir Samuel said, "give us some more Blakes, as many as possible, and not only the navy but the country and the Empire will be eternally grateful to you."

HOSPITAL FINDS NEW USE FOR A HAIR DRYER

An electric hair dryer is being used in the treatment of a University College Hospital patient who is suffering from gangrene of the toe. Infection—the danger of gangrene—cannot occur if the affected tissues are kept dry. It has been found at the hospital that a gentle current of warm air from an electric hair dryer is the most efficient method of doing this.

AUSTRALIA WINS

England Lose Third Test Match By 365 Runs

LEYLAND'S UNDEFEATED CENTURY

Melbourne, January 7.
Australia won the third Test match by 365 runs at Melbourne this morning and must now win the remaining two Tests if she is to retain the Ashes won by W. M. Woodfull's team in England in 1934.

Maurice Leyland played delightful cricket to score 111 runs not out in 194 minutes, hitting 11 boundaries. Together with R. W. V. Robins (61) he added 111 runs for the seventh wicket in a plucky but unavailing attempt to pull the game out of the fire.

Interviewed after the match G. O. B. Allen, the English skipper, said: "What more can I say than I heartily congratulate the Australians."

The weather was warm and cloudy this morning, but there was only a crowd of 2,000 present when Leyland (89) and Robins (27) resumed England's innings.

Bradman went out to field, but it was announced that Allen was suffering from knee trouble. Voce had a jarred ankle and Leyland was suffering from a strained shoulder. All three will remain here until January 13 for medical treatment.

Leyland and Robins sent up the 250 after 223 minutes, the partnership realising 50 runs in 25 minutes. The Yorkshireman was bringing off some magnificent shots to leg, while Robins, the Middlesex amateur, was scoring most of his runs as the result of well-timed straight drives.

The 300 was hoisted after 252 minutes and the partnership added 100 runs in 59 minutes! Leyland reached his century after 168 minutes.

STAND BROWN
Eleven runs later, however, Robins was clean bowled by O'Reilly when playing forward. 306-7-61. He completed his 50 in 47 minutes and was only 75 minutes collecting 81 runs, which included seven boundaries. His partnership with Leyland added 111 runs.

Verity left at 322, when McCabe accepted a skier at mid on off O'Reilly. Sims was out lbw under the new rule one run later, and Voce did not survive one ball, being caught by Bradman off a skier, the innings thus closing for 323, scored in 278 minutes, to give Australia victory by 365 runs.

RESULTS OF TESTS
The following have been the results of the first three Tests.

At Brisbane—England won by an innings and 22 runs.
At Sydney—England won by 322 runs.

Mackenzie, O.B.E., M.C., Royal Army Medical Corps, has been awarded the Parkes Memorial Prize for his investigations into the ammonia-chlorine process of water purification in the field, coupled with research carried out by him in connection with food supplies in India. By this work Major Mackenzie has achieved much in the advancement of military hygiene.

The Parkes Memorial Prize is awarded annually to the officer who is considered to have done most to promote the advancement of naval or military hygiene by professional work of outstanding merit, and is open to medical officers of the Royal Navy, the Army, with the exception of the professors and assistant professors of the Royal Naval Medical College, Greenwich, and of the Royal Army Medical College, London, during their term of office.

BRIGADIER BROKE-SMITH
Brigadier Philip W. L. Broke-Smith, D.S.O., O.B.E., has retired after 36 years' service in the Royal Engineers. He was one of the early group of sappers who specialized in aeronautics. After service in India he became instructor at the Balloon School and acting adjutant and instructor of the Air Battalion. In 1914 he went as instructor and squadron commander to the Central Flying School, and he was afterwards D.A.D. and A.D. of Aviation. In 1919 he went on the Indian Establishment and became in turn A.D. of Works, Assistant Director-General of Military Works, C.R.E. Deputy Engineer-in-Chief Engineer. He left the latter post recently on completion of a four-year tenure.

Griffins of this Meeting barred. Weight for inches as per scale. Jockey Allowance. Entrance $5. One Mile.

WASEDA HOCKEY PLAYERS

All-Japanese Champs Here For Games

LOCAL FIXTURES

Seventeen smiling faces greeted local Pressmen when they boarded the J.S. Taiyo Maru last night on its arrival from Shanghai and located the members of the hockey team of the Waseda University. Few of the visitors could speak even a word of English but they somehow got the gist of what was wanted from them and very obligingly furnished all the desired information in the best way they could.

The members of the party are as follows:—Y. Shinjiro (Inspector), S. Kojima (Coach), T. Yamada (Captain), M. Sugawara, K. Kawai, T. Yonemaru, S. Masamune, Y. Shimoda, K. Kurosaka, T. Yamada, H. Tomita, M. Ishara, S. Kawahara, M. Onizuka, M. Kawashima, T. Takeishi and K. Yamamoto.

Among those who were present together with the Press representatives to welcome the visiting hockey team were Mr. F. A. Kemp, Secretary of the Hong Kong Hockey Association, and an Army representative.

The Waseda's trip to Singapore has been cancelled owing to the fact that they would not be able to return to Japan in time to attend the opening of the term in the University. However, after playing seven games in Hong Kong they will return to Japan by the Taiyo Maru, stopping over in Shanghai for a single day, where they will be engaged in only one game there.

ALL-JAPAN CHAMPIONS

The Waseda team recently won the All-Japan Championship when, on November 29, 1936, they easily defeated the Kyoto Imperial University by the huge score of 7 goals to nil. Among other games they played in the preliminary rounds of the championship in which 21 teams from all over Japan were entered, were the following:—v. Rikkyo, 2-2; v. Hosei, 11-0; v. Commercial College, 3-0; v. Meiji, 4-3; v. Keio, 2-0; v. Sunda, (for the College Championship), 2-1.

Their right-wing, M. Sugawara, was a member of the reserves for the Olympic Team, but perhaps their biggest goal-getter is the inside-right, K. Kawai, who, when questioned by Pressmen on this score, very modestly disclaimed the honour. However, the Waseda team is a very well balanced one and they are putting the greatest faith in the combination and understanding between their forwards and the intermediate line.

Hockey has been played in Japan during the past 35 years and it is as popular a sport with Japanese universities as are rugby and baseball. In 1927 the Waseda sent out a team to Hong Kong which, however, lost to the Colony side by the close score of three goals to two. This time they are fully confident that they will get the better of their games with local teams.

LOCAL FIXTURES

The Waseda players will have a knock-up to-day and will commence their programme to-morrow as follows:—
Saturday, January 9—v. Combined Services, U.S.R.C. ground, 4 p.m.
Sunday, January 10—v. Colony, Navy ground, 3.30 p.m.
Monday, January 11—v. Navy, Navy ground, 4.15 p.m.
Wednesday, January 13—v. Army, Navy ground, 4.15 p.m.
Thursday, January 14—v. Argonauts, Navy ground, 4.15 p.m.
Saturday, January 16—v. Hong Kong University, Navy ground, 4 p.m.
Sunday, January 17—v. Civilians, Navy ground, 4 p.m.

OLD CORONATION PAGEANT

London, Jan. 6.
The tenth annual report of the "Friends of Canterbury Cathedral," just published, in addition to recording another year's work of the Society in aiding expert restoration of the Cathedral fabric, contains a hitherto unpublished account of the Coronation pageant of Queen Elizabeth, of special interest in the present year. The Queen was welcomed on her entry into London on May 24, 1565, by a ceremonial staged on London Bridge, where a platform was put

The rapidity with which conditions in China have been changing has handicapped the Department in assessing credit risks and the number of proposals received by them prompted the appointment of Mr. Kirkpatrick. The representative is not here seeking orders.

Mr. Kirkpatrick started life in the Eastern Exchange Bank and was for many years in Delhi as an importer of British textiles. He took active part in the Co-operative Societies' movement in Bengal and was a pioneer of the development of basic mineral properties in Orissa. In 1924 he visited Japan on behalf of Messrs. M. Samuel and Company and subsequently went on an extensive tour of the world.

He is quite familiar with South China for, in 1927, he came out here on a mission on behalf of the Oriental Telephone Company. Mrs. Kirkpatrick, when a girl, was a close friend of Dr. Sun Yat-sen.

Interviewed by the Press yesterday, Mr. Kirkpatrick stated that he had nothing new to say but opined that he would have much more to say when he prepares to leave China. He will be getting in touch with the British Consul at the leading China cities.

Great Britain Turns To Conscription?

"WE'LL HAVE AN ARMY"
Government speakers are hinting more and more broadly that unless recruiting figures rise rapidly conscription is bound to come.

There has been a slight improvement but it can only be regarded as a drop in the ocean.

A military expert said, "you can take it from me that if the young men won't come in, they will be brought in. We want a volunteer army, but if we can't get it we shall have an army anyway."

"As it is, we cannot police the Empire adequately. A few troops for India or Egypt and the home forces are reduced to below the minimum."

"SUREST BARRIER"
"God help us in case of war." Recent measures taken to make the Army more attractive, with more comforts and more meals, are expected to pull their weight from now on.

"If the Territorial recruiting only looked up, things would be all right," it was hinted. "The Territorials are the surest barrier against conscription."

After conferring with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in Fengshui, Mr. T. V. Soong returned to Shanghai, and to-day he will leave for Nanking.

It is reported that Mr. Soong will return to Shanghai together with Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang. Yesterday General Wang Shu-shang, the newly appointed Pacification Commissioner for Kansu Province, called on Mr. T. V. Soong, and remained with him for a considerable time.

Mr. Li Chi-kong, representative of General Yang Fu-cheng, Pacification Commissioner of Shensi Province called on Mr. Yu Yu-yin, and General Ho Ying-ching yesterday for instructions, before leaving for Shensi to take up his new post.

On the 5th instant, General Koo Chuk-tung, Commander-in-Chief of the Shensi Military Forces together with members of his staff flew to Loyang by aeroplane, and from there he will proceed to Sianfu to assume control of the measures necessary for the rehabilitation of the province.—Chinese Evening Press.

FOREIGN MAILS

BROADCAST RECEIVING LICENCES

Holders of licences are reminded that if it is desired to continue to retain possession of the apparatus after the date of expiration of the licence a renewal must be effected without delay.
As from 4th January, 1937, new Licences will be available at the Government Radio Office, G.P.O. Building, First Floor, on ordinary business days, and will be issued against the receipt of a remittance of $12.00, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. except on Saturdays when licences will be issued between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Applications may be made:—
(a) personally.
(b) by messenger.
It is essential under (a) and preferable under (a) and (b) that applications should be accompanied by crossed cheque payable to Hongkong Government. The new licence will then be sent by post or messenger as soon as it is ready. Where actual cash is tendered a new licence should be received in exchange before leaving the Licensing Office.
In the case of renewal the old licence should be returned with the application.

The Public are reminded that the postage on Printed Papers, Commercial Papers, Samples and Small Packets must be fully prepaid. Insufficiently pre paid Printed Papers etc. are NOT forwarded.

Letters and Postcards for Europe and South America are forwarded "via Siberia" if so superscribed.
